DISCUSSION: It is the method by which cognitive interaction takes place for the functional purpose of yielding a theoretical conclusion of one's social practice to either push the movement of cognition forward from the particular to the general or from the general to the particular.

PROCESS: My practice during the formation of PA & the Summer Marketing Campaign

SOURCES: Bill

900: Theory is the codification of practice when derived from the completion of the C of K.

904: Resistance to use of administrative methods

906: Quantity of labor invested was in direct proportion to verification of PC value in contradiction to development of socialized property

907: Establishment of alliance of non-struggle with Mona

908: Procedural direction of process vs. Ideological struggle and building organizational structure

909: Reacting to events and suggestions vs Analysis and completion of C of K.

Objective Side:

Born and raised as oldest child and first son of US & British missionaries during the height of US imperial power, and during wane of British power. Only white kid for miles around. Servants did the household production. Value was greatly inflated simply because of being born into that class position. Picked up on abstract intellectual skills but resisted training in practical skills from non-DI. Both parents went into the church from working class backgrounds. Despite DI coming from conditions of metaphysical racism, I internalized my conditions as verification of personal supremacy.

Historically my practice has been in contradiction to programs which have a high degree of organizational structure and accountability. Every time the struggle heightened to a certain extent, I moved to disassociate self from that program.

External ConditionI

The main external condition this summer was being in a lp. position in establishing a business, which by definition demands a high level of organization and accountability (financial & economic). I was also in an lp position for a production program which also demanded efficient organization. Both forms were facing the contradiction of making the leap from personalized FOO to business level FOO.

On my job I was able to maximize value because it is in a transitional stage. A new team leader is trying to eliminate the disorganized personal implementation which prevails, but at the same time he is new as a team leader and does not give much direction. Having struggled through similar situations in TJE I was able to contribute to the process, especially in form. Because the low level of others practice, I appeared relatively organized and productive. Because of the history of the team there was not a high standard of productivity demanded.

Internal Basis:

Internalization of historical condition: My qualifications for personal supremacy were purely external; my family, the color of my skin, my sex, rather than a skill or ability. This created the following contradiction; my BWOL was that I was supposed to be superior but I lacked internal basis to prove superiority. This is basis for strong metaphysical reaction to struggle: I either fiercely externalize struggle or am demoralized because it confirms the historical fear of being hollow inside.
